

APPEALS BY PASTORS IN DRIVE FOR JOBS

Army Board Here Also Prepared to Aid Unemployed Iron
Division Men

BOOTH IN CITY HALL YARD

A "Pennsylvania jobs for Pennsylvania men" campaign will be launched from the pulpits of thousands of churches throughout the state on next Sunday, which has been designated as "employment Sunday" by President Wilson. On that date the clergymen will appeal to their congregations to aid in the finding of positions for the returning heroes of this state.

The list of men in the Twenty-eighth Division who do not have jobs awaiting them will be obtained by the employment agencies by means of a card system that has been instituted in the army. The cards bearing the name, address and kind of employment desired is then sent to the soldier's home town. After a state-wide investigation, the War Department has established here a commission of four army men who will be detailed to investigate all cases of returning men of the Iron Division not being given preference in jobs by local and state employers.

Establishment of the commission here follows charges by Frank B. McClain, former lieutenant governor, who is now supervising the state employment service, that local and state employers were slack on the work of providing re-employment for the soldiers. Mr. McClain denounced the employers "who place the dollar above the flag." He further charged that some employers while offering the returning men jobs, at the same time were offering "ridiculously" low wages.

The commission which is headed by Captain C. C. Rutledge, will immediately establish headquarters here. Three lieutenants will be stationed in different parts of the state and they will be empowered to bring the employer and the soldier together.

Lieutenant Wesley E. Craig will be stationed in this city, while Lieutenant Raymond Caswell will have charge of the central section of the state. A third officer will be assigned to the western portion of the state.

The men will be asked to investigate all cases of discrimination against returning soldiers and try to arrange an amicable settlement with the employer whereby he will employ the returning men of the Iron Division. The commission will be under the direct orders of Colonel Arthur Woods, special assistant secretary of war.

Reports of the army investigators will be forwarded directly to the War Department. Captain Rutledge declared his mission was largely to bring the employers to a point where they would list all their available positions with the soldiers and sailors' bureaus in the state.

RED CROSS AUXILIARY QUILTS

Frankford Group, No. 12, Finishes
Work of Two Years

The war work of Auxiliary No. 12, American Red Cross, was brought to a close last night with a business meeting in the headquarters, at 4510 Frankford avenue. The Rev. John B. Laird, pastor of the Frankford Presbyterian Church, who is president of the association, presided, and Thomas Creighton, secretary, gave a review of the two years' work done by Auxiliary No. 12 both during the war and the influenza epidemic.

Mr. Creighton said that a bronze tablet commemorating the work of the organization given by the Frankford Mutual Fire Insurance Company would be erected in the hall of the building.

John Goffing, treasurer, and William Henry Smedley, chairman of the finance committee, read reports which showed that the organization had received contributions amounting to more than $48,000 since its inception. Of this money there is still a small amount remaining in the treasury.

Dr. Sarah P. Miller, executive secretary, read a general report summarizing the work of the organization and the reports of the various committees. She stated that the organization would remain intact and that it would always be ready for any emergency.

Official Citation

DILBOY, GEORGE, Private, First Class, Co. H, 103rd Infantry. (Deceased.)

FOR conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action with the enemy near Belleau, France, July 18, 1918.

After his platoon had gained its objective along a railroad embankment, Private Dilboy, accompanying his platoon leader to reconnoiter the ground beyond, was suddenly fired upon by an enemy machine gun from one hundred yards. From a standing position on the railroad track, fully exposed to view, he opened fire at once, but failing to silence the gun, rushed forward with his bayonet fixed, thru a wheat field toward the gun emplacement, falling within twenty-five yards of the gun with his right leg nearly severed above the knee, and with several bullet holes in his body, with undaunted courage, he continued to fire into the emplacement from a prone position, killing two of the enemy and dispersing the rest of the crew.

Home address: Antone Dilboy, Father, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, Mass.
